One of the best ways to tie and play with the little one is to sing nursery rhymes together. She may already know a bunch of those in English, but Filipino children's songs are a great foundation for making children speak their native language fluently, apart from being learning opportunities. Introduce your children to these childhood classics: 1. Bahay Kubo Do you have a picky eater? Bahay Kubo introduces children to a variety of local vegetables, such as sitaw, bataw, and patani. We love the animated version of channel knowledge of the classic pinoy nursery rhyme because they show what each of the vegetables looks like. At best? The song can even make the little one interested in trying some vegetables! Do you know how to cook these, Mom? 2. Pen Pen De Sara Pen Lyrics don't really make any sense, but stupid words are fun to sing (anyone who knows what the beaten means?). Kids like to use the rhyming song when playing, they like to choose taya when playing tag, for example. It's one of the songs that is the Pinoy equivalent of Eeny, meeny, miny, moe! PUBLICITY - CONTINUETOS TO BROWSE CONTINUES TO READ BELOW 3. Tong Tong Tong Pakitong-Kitong This can be a pretty simple song with just a verse dedicated to the difficulties of catching crabs at sea. Fortunately, Pinoy's likes to turn it into a playful game where the verse is repeated, but with each vowel replaced with only a designated vowel (for example, alimango turns into alamanga). Coupled with stupid hand gestures, it will have you and your kiddo in bouts of giggles by the end. (Find a Cebuano version with a voice here.) 4. Sampung Morulusog na Bata A lot of time, pinoy kids learn to count in English before doing it in Filipino. Learn your kiddo numbers in our native language with this fun counting song. Use your fingers, or you can even make an activity out of it and make finger puppets! 5. Tatlong Bibe Here's one that gained a result in popularity last year as different covers of the song went viral on social media. The song, which has a song similar to Hush's lullaby, Little Baby, is easy to act with (one of the reasons it went viral!) so feel free to come up with your own actions. PUBLICITY - CONTINUETOS TO BROWSE CONTINUES TO READ BELOW 6. Leron Leron Sinta Beta we're betting that your little one will sing this at school! Teach him home, and it is an opportunity to introduce your child to the richness of our language and learn words that he could not encounter in everyday conversations, such as sisidlan and buslo. The video above already conveniently adds actions to the catchy tone as well. 7. Ako Ay Mai Lobo This may not be such a happy song, but it is a favorite pinoy loved. It tells the story of a child who loses a balloon that flew into the sky. Lyrics melodia sun simply, dar estea ce face ca piesa atãt de emoționantã primul rând. Winning 2 One in great ways to bond play with your little child is singing English peppering rimeaze with her. Can which is well-known nursery rhymes in English, but rhymes English nursery is also a beautiful foundation for your child to learn and become a good speaker of our native language. Enter your children's classic English nursery rhymes from childhood: 1. House Kit Choose to eat your child? The Home Bowl song will introduce kids to our local vegetables, like chicken, dead, and drinking. We love the animated version of the Knowledge Channel of this classic because they show what each vegetable looks like. The best possible? This song can convince your child to try some of the vegetables! Do you know how to cook it, Mom? 2. Pen De Sara Pen PUBLICITY - LECTURA below does not really mean and means the words or lyrics of the song, but are happy to sing songs (is there anyone who knows the word batang?). Kids like to use rhyming songs when they play especially when choosing between them, pretending to be tagged or betting. This is the refinement version of Refiners in the song Eeny, meeny, miny, moe! 3. Tong Tong Tong Tong Pakistan-kitten This is a simple song with a version of the difficulties going through catching crab at sea. Fiaciouss makes the song more vivid and fun and used to play or excitement where you just repeat the berg and just use a vowel or stick to all the words of the song (eg, the word crab will become crab). Along with the short and funny movements of the hand and body, make sure the child will laugh after the song. (See the song version in Cebuano here.) PUBLICITY - READ BELOW 4. Ten healthy children often learn more first in English. Teach your children to count in a native language using this song. You can use your fingers or have other activities like making finger puppets! 5. Three Bibes this song really brilliant and became mac last year, thanks to its different versions on social media. The song has a tone that resembles the hele Hush song, Little Baby, so it's easy to stick with the actions and dances in this song (one of the reasons it shines or goes viral). Don't be erenzy to make your own version. 6. Leron Leron Sinta Pupil me that your child will sing at school! Teach it at home, as it is a wonderful opportunity to show your child the treasure of our own language and to learn deep words or words that are often not used in daily conversations, such as the words pots and whispers. The video above shows additional action or dancing forever ng kanta. PUBLICITY - CONTINUETOS TO BROWSE CONTINUES TO READ BELOW 7. Ako Ay May Lobo Hindi man masaya ang kwento ng kantang ito, isa naman ito sa mpa paborito ng inga Pinoy na Tagalog nursery rhymes para sa bata. Ito ay kwento ng isang bata na nawalan ng lobo dahil lumipad ito paunta sa langit. Simple lang ang lyrics o lga saleta pati ang melodiya ng kantang ito pero ito rin ang dahilan kung bakit ito nakakaanting. While we spend so much time at home these days, finding new ways to entertain children can be a challenge. I know a lot of people who come to my site are looking for music in other languages. I have written about Russian children's songs and German children's songs in the past. For this post, I asked my Filipino mother to tell me about some of the songs she remembers and this what she found. Here are some Filipino songs for kids. A note about the language. There are many languages and dialects spoken in the Philippines. Filipino is standardized, the official version that is based on Tagalog, the most spoken language in the Philippines. To be honest, it's all a little confusing for me. I grew up knowing it as Tagalog – that I've learned is how it's mentioned in the Philippines, but it can be globally referred to as Filipino. The songs below are in Tagalog/Philippines. If you want to read more about the languages of the Philippines you can here. The Filipino Children's YouTube Channel, Filipino Children's, has a lot of resources to help children learn about the Philippines through language and song. Here are some of the Nursery Rhymes from their website. Both include Tagalog and English translations. Tong, Tong, Tong Bahay Kubo Like head, shoulders, knees, and legs The following song is similar to English Head, Shoulders, Knees, and feet except starts at the feet and is sung in a different song. This release also includes ukelele chords. Paa, Tuhod, Balikat, Ulo Philippine Children Song Compilations In addition to the individual songs above, Pambata TV offers many Filipino Nursery Rhyme compilations and cartoon stories. below are some of the compilations my mother passed out. Unfortunately, the way your ads are set up with YouTube you can get an ad break in the middle of a song – but, given that it's a free resource, it's ok with me! 60 minutes of Filipino Nursery Rhymes 23 minutes of Filipino Nursery Rhymes 20 minutes of Filipino Nursery Rhymes Rhymes Rhymes – A list of Filipino Nursery rhymes with lyrics and translations into English. It's never too early to stimulate young minds and get the little ones excited about learning a language. There are countless ways in which children can be involved and taught by parents and caregivers creatively, and one of them is the introduction of kindergarten rhymes.
